Welcome to our November Edition!!!!

Dear Parents,

We are not far away from the "End of Year Celebration". Invites for our "End of Year Party", "Kinder Graduation Event" will be emailed to you all closer to the date.

If you haven't already provided us with your holiday dates yet, we request you to kindly inform us about it as soon as possible as it will help us a lot with our staff leave planning.

We will be commencing our "End of Year Interviews" in a few weeks times. The log book with the times available for each rooms will be put out so you can pencil in the time slots that suits you best for the interview. As its going to be a very busy time of the year, we will unfortunately not be able to assist you with any other make-up dates or times for the interviews. So please fill in the times as soon as you can.

The staff allocations have already been out and we have tried to allocate educators carefully so there is a known face for each child in each room to promote smooth transition going into next year.

Thank you. .
Kind Regards,
Anjali Rauniyar

REMEMBRANCE DAY – 11TH

In 2017, 11 November marks the 99th anniversary of the Armistice, which ended the First World War (1914–18). Each year on this day Australians observe one minute’s silence at 11 am, in memory of those who died or suffered in all wars and armed conflicts. The Service of Remembrance in many Commonwealth countries generally includes the sounding of the "Last Post", followed by the period of silence, followed by the sounding of "Reveille" or sometimes just "The Rouse".

UNIVERSAL CHILDREN’S DAY – 20TH

Established by the United Nations in 1954, Children's Day is marked on November 20 each year to promote international togetherness, awareness among children worldwide, and improving children's welfare. Universal Children's Day offers each of us an inspirational entry-point to advocate, promote and celebrate children's rights, translating into dialogues and actions that will build a better world for children. www.un.org/en/events/childrenday/

FOCUS ARTICLE: Transition to School

Children who are mentally healthy are better learners, have stronger relationships and are better able to meet life's challenges.

How can you help prepare your child?

Attend school transition sessions: By attending these sessions you are helping your child familiarise themselves with their new environment and the other people who will be there with them.

Some schools offer extensive programs over a period of months or weeks, take advantage of these! Some programs invite children to attend play based learning sessions with other enrolled kindergarten students.

Talking: Talk with your child in a positive way about starting school. Monitor your child's response to conversations about school and how they react. This will give you insight to how they are feeling and help you plan ways to support your child.

Books: Books are a great way for your child to become familiar with new routines, including the transition to school.

Starting school is an important time for children and families. Children who make a positive start to school are more likely to: feel comfortable, relaxed and valued, feel excited and motivated to learn, have good relationships with others and develop a sense of belonging within the school community.

Starting school is not just about the first day. It's a process that begins when children and families start to prepare in the year before, and continues as children experience their first days, weeks and months of school. The process involves a number of changes for children and families, and everyone reacts differently.

For some children the change brings excitement about making friends and learning new things, while for others the change can leave them feeling nervous and overwhelmed. You may reflect on your own school experiences and be reminded of the mix of emotions you felt when starting school.

Families play an important role in supporting children to manage the transition to primary school. With the support of your child's early childhood educator and school teacher, you can help them to cope with the new challenges by developing their social, emotional and learning skills. Supporting your child's skills in these areas contributes to their mental health and wellbeing.

CONNECT-THE-DOTS WITH LETTERS

Good old connect-the-dots gets revamped when you write a handful of repeating letters in random patterns down a length of butcher's paper. Kids can connect the letters in any way they like, so long as all of the G's are connected to the other G's, and so on. Choose only 5-6 letters at a time and try to include one or two letters your child is confident with. You can alter the difficulty of this activity by using one single colour or writing all the A's in one colour and the C's in another. You could also mix uppercase and lowercase letters depending on your child's ability.

HEALTH & SAFETY: Water Safety for Preschool Children

During this stage your child is far more independent. They will dress themselves, feed themselves, clean their teeth and take themselves to the toilet. During this stage many parents have their hands full with new additions to the family. Very often this results in the older child being given more responsibility and independence.

While children seem far more mature and capable of making more complex decisions they still need their parents or caregivers for supervision and direction to maintain a safe learning environment, particularly when water is concerned.

During this stage the unsupervised child may be capable of

- Filling the bath, laundry tub or play pool with water
- Climbing the fence
- Pulling objects up to the pool fence to help them open the gate
- Opening the front door and wander into the neighbours unfenced pool or fish pond

As a result parents need to continue their diligence with supervision and check and secure the home from potential water hazards. This is also a great time to set some ground rules with your child around water. Remember your child's comprehension is improving and they will begin to learn their boundaries. Creating a routine in preparation for water play will also play an important role in water safety. For example teach your child that before playing in water they must get dressed into their swim wear and collect their towel, sunscreen and toys in preparation. In doing so you may actually be alerted to your child displaying signs that they want to play in the water.

It's important to supervise your children at all times. No child is drown-proof and preschool children are best kept at arm's length even if you think they are safe in shallow water. Even children who are very confident and competent with swimming skills can find themselves in dangerous situations.

Once children have learnt to swim and are independently mobile in the water it is important that they are given an opportunity to explore and play in deep water. Parents must remain within arm's reach closely supervising but allow children the freedom to do things for themselves so that they learn their limitations and boundaries. Doing things for themselves will help in teaching children a respect for the water.

BIG AUSSIE SWAP

Planet Ark is calling on Australians to join the War on Waste and take part in the Big Aussie Swap during National Recycling Week from 13th – 19th November.

Savvy shoppers who take part in their local Big Aussie Swap will experience a unique dose of retail therapy. To take part participants simply exchange good-quality, but unwanted, items like clothes books, CDs, children's toys, accessories and sporting equipment for tokens that are then used to 'purchase' pre-loved products that have been brought along by other swappers. Swaps extend the lives of useable items, are a great alternative to buying new items that people don't need and promote community engagement and awareness about reducing waste.

You can take part in community and local council swap Or host your own swap party at work or at home!!!

Planet Ark's Big Aussie Swap 'How-To Guide' has helpful advice on running a successful Swap session and useful resources such as invitations, swap tokens and signage.
